Dec 01, 2009	My Photos
Dec 01, 2009	My Documents
Dec 01, 2009	johnsmith

Just Landed

by Patrizia Figoli — last modified May 11, 2009 10:16 PM

I have just relocated to Houston. My impressions. . .

Eyes are still wet from the recent good-byes. The fatigue and the stress that accompany a move cannot be described in words. The amount of nights with less than four hours sleep surpass the number of fingers on one hand, then the other hand. . .Anyone who has experienced the process of leaving a country can sympathise, the others are classified in two categories:

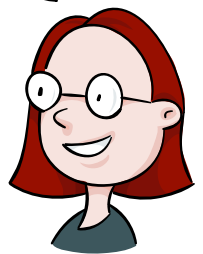

- the ones that in disbelief ask you "How do you manage?" (You don't is the right answer!) and who think you are totally crazy;
- the ones who have no clue about how time consuming and involving both mentally and emotionally the process is and believe you overstate it, so make plans to get together for a chat and a cup of coffee as if everything is normal.

"Why fear, Paguro is here?". . . Yes, the extremely useful lists of to do's are nicely laid out but the picture in reality is that there isn't a perfect secretary with a clear mind and the time in their work day to do it all. There is just one person (or two if you are to helped by your spouse, lucky!) who has to double up as a housekeeper, account manager, house administrator, driver, packing coordinator, insurance clerk, cook, gardener, repair man, lawyer ...

I shall spare you the rest, is not worth it.

So, this virtual site of yours within paguro will grow and grow with whatever content you wish to include...
